Poetry.

"She Loved Much."

"She loved much." Such was the legend sweet
 That circled her in Magdala of yore,
 Who, dearest, thine expressive little bore;
And O, to shadow forth thyself how meet.

She sits beside the loving Master's feet,
 She leaves them with her tears and golden tresses
 And every act of after-life expresses
How like she was to Him she came to greet.

Tradition names her sinner. We as saint
 Know her alone in page of holy writ,
 As one who joyed with Him, her love, to sit;
As one who every artist learns to paint.

Filled with a love unswevering and ne'er faint
 Ready to suffer every earthly loss,
 First at the tomb, as last beside the cross;
Thrice blest a love like hers that knows no earthly taint!—Tinsley's Magazine.

Selected Story.

Tom's Wife.

BY KATE PUTNAM OSGOOD.

We had just finished breakfast. Tom laid down an egg-spoon he had been playing with and looked across at mother.

"Aunt Anne, I think I'll take a wife," he said, exactly as he might have said "I think I'll take another cup of coffee."

"Take a wife!" repeated mother, by no means receiving the information as tranquilly as it had been given. "What for?"

"Well, I don't know," answered Tom, thoughtfully, "it's a notion I've got into my head somehow."

"All nonsense," said mother sharply.

"Do you think so?" said Tom, apparently doubtful, but not in the least put out.

"Think so? I know it. What in the world can you want of a wife? After all these years we have lived so comfortable together, to bring somebody to turn the house upside down! And then, what's to become of that poor child?"

The "poor child"—that was I—reddening at being brought into the argument in this way was about to speak for herself, when Tom interposed, warmly:

"I'm sure May knows I would never have any wife who would make it less a home for her—don't you May?"

"Of course," I said.

"And I'm sure she knows nothing of the sort," persisted mother, "nor you, either, Tom Dean. How can you answer for what a wife may take into her head to do, once you get her fixed here? You can't expect her to forget, as you do, that May has no real claim on you."

"That I have no real claim on her, I suppose you mean, ma'am," Tom put in for the second time just as I was getting thoroughly uncomfortable. "But for all that I intend to keep her, that is," added Tom, with one of his short-sighted blinks sidewise at me, "as long as she'll stay with me, eh, May? And whoever has anything to say against that arrangement will have to go out of my house to say it; not that I'm afraid of any such result in this case; and, on the whole, Aunt Anne, I should like to try the experiment."

Mother smiled grimly, but Tom was so evidently bent on his "experiment," as he called it, that she gave up the argument.

"You can dance, if you're ready to pay the piper," she said shortly. "And pray, how soon do you intend to be married?"

Tom's face fell a little at this question.

"Well," said he, "I can't say exactly; I suppose we shall have to be engaged first."

"What!" said mother, opening her eyes; "why, you never mean to say, Tom, that you haven't spoken to her yet?"

"Not yet," answered Tom cheerfully.—"Time enough for that, you know, after I had spoken to you."

Mother, as a minister's widow, was not much given to the idle mirth that is as the crackling of thorns under a pot, but now she leaned back and laughed till the tears stood in her eyes.

"Well," she said, "if it was anybody else I should say he was cracked; but you never were like other people, and you never will be, Tom Dean. But at least you have fixed on the lady?"

"Oh, yes," answerd Tom; "but if you will excuse me, Aunt Anne, I would rather not say anything about her just yet, for, if—if anything should happen, it wouldn't be pleasant for either party, you know." With which veiled allusion to his possible rejection Tom took his hat and left the room.

Our household was rather queerly put together. There was no particular reason why I should have been of it at all, for I was not really related to Tom, nor even to "mother," as I called her, though I am sure we were as dear to each other as any mother and daughter could be. She was the second wife of my father, who, like most ministers, had been richer in grace than in goods, and he left us at his death with very little to live on. Then it was that Tom Dean had come forward and insisted on giving a home to his aunt, and to me, whom he had scarcely seen a dozen times in his life before. That was exactly like Tom—"queer Tom Dean," as his friends were fond of saying, "who never did anything like anybody else." All I had to do was to go where mother went, and while she gave her energies to the housekeeping I gave mine to growing up, which by this time I had pretty well accomplished. I knew that mother had spoken honestly, believing that such a step would not be for his happiness; but was not he the best judge of that? I knew him, if reflection should bring him around to her opinion, to be perfectly capable of quietly sacrificing his own wishes for my sake, who had not the shadow of a claim on him; so it must be my part to prevent his own kindness being turned against him now. What could I do? Draw and sing and play tolerably, but not in a manner to compete with the hosts that would be in the field against me. Literature? I had read so many stories whose heroines, with a turn of the pen, dashed into wealth and fame! That would be very nice, only—I was not the least little bit literary. The fine arts then being out of the question for me, what remained? There was some clerkship, or a place in some family, and—and there was Will Broomly!

That may seem like going away from the point, but it was not. I was matter-of-fact, but I could see well enough what was going on right under my eyes, and had a pretty clear idea of what was bringing Will to the house so often as he had taken to coming lately. There was a "situation," then, that would give me the home-life I liked best and felt myself best suited for, but—would it answer in other respects? I overcast the long seam I was sewing twice over, I was so busy trying to make up my mind whether I liked Will enough to pass my whole life with him; and even then I had not come to any decision, when I was called down by Letty Walters.

Letty was the prettiest, I think, of all my friends, and certainly the liveliest. Tom called her the "tonic," and used to laugh heartily at her bright speeches. I suppose it was this that made mother fix on Letty as his choice. When I came into the sitting room I found a kind of cross-examination going on. It was amusing to anybody in the secret as I was to watch mother's artful way of continually bringing the conversation around, as if by chance, to bear on what she wanted to know. But it all amounted to nothing—either because Letty was too good a fencer or because she really had nothing to betray. But when Tom came home mother took care to mention that Letty had called.

"What, the tonic?" said Tom. "Too bad I missed her."

"But for your choice being made," said mother, with a covert scrutiny of his face, "I dare say you might have as much of the tonic as you liked."

"But I go on the homeopathic principle, you know," said Tom with a twinkle in his eye.

After that mother's belief in Lettie's guiltiness wavered. Her suspicions were transferred from one to another of our acquaintance, but always with the same unsatisfactory result.

"It passes my comprehension," she said to me desparingly one day. "I am positive I could tell the right one by Tom's face in a minute, and yet I have mentioned every body we know."

"Perhaps it is somebody we don't know," I suggested "some friend of his we have never seen."

"What! a perfect stranger?" said mother sharply. "Never talk to me, child; Tom's not capable of that."

I was silent, for I did not want to worry her; but that was my opinion all the same.

The same evening, it was rather more than a week since Tom had hurled that thunderbolt of his at us, mother began about it openly.

"When are you going to introduce your wife to us, Tom. I suppose you have come to an uuderstanding by this time?"

"Oh, there's no hurry," Tom said, as he had said before; but this time he did not speak quite so cheerfully. "The fact is," he continued with a little hesitation, "there is—there is a rival in the case."

"A rival?" repeated mother with unfeeling briskness.

"Yes, a young fellow—younger by a good deal than I am;" and Tom's face assumed an absurdly doleful look. "He is always there now. I confess I don't see my way clear; I'm waiting for her to make up her mind."

"And she's waiting, most likely, for you to make up yours," said mother, forgetting in her propensity to right matters that she was playing the enemy's game.

"There's something in that that never occurred to me," said Tom, his face brightening. Mother saw her mistake, and made a counter move at once.

"But the ways of my time are old-fashioned now; young ladies now-a-days take matters in their own hands. If she cared for you, you may be pretty sure she would not have waited all this time to let you know it—that is, I judge by the girls I am in the habit of seeing; but if this one is a stranger to me—" (here mother rivited her eyes on Tom's face; oh, dear, my unfortunate words!) "if she is an entire stranger, I cannot pretend to form an opinion of her, of course."

"Of course," repeated Tom absently.

"Not that I have any such idea," resumed mother, growing warmer; "I have said, and I say again, that to bring a perfect stranger under this roof is not my opinion of you, Tom."

I felt my mother's words like so many pins and needles, for Tom was looking meditatively across at me, and, though that was just a way of his, it seemed now as if he was reading in my face that the opinion was mine, and that I had been meddling in what did uot concern me. I felt myself, for very vexation, getting redder every moment, till it grew intolerable.

"It is so warm here," I said for an excuse, turning towards the French window; "I am going to get a breath of fresh air."

I went out into our little strip of garden ground; Tom followed. I thought I should never have a better opportunity to say what I had it in my mind to say, so I waited for him by the bench under the old pear tree. "Sit down here, Tom," I said, "I've something to say to you."

"Have you?" said Tom; "that's odd, for I—well never mind that just yet. What is it, May?"

"Tom," I said, still surer now he had misjudged me, and more resolved to set him right, "I want a place."

"A place!" repeated Tom, puzzled, as well he might be, by this sudden and indefinite announcement; "what kind of a place?"

"I don't know," I said, for indeed my ideas were of the vaguest. "I thought you might, being in the way of those things, get me one. Now, pray, Tom," I went on, qyickly, "don't fancy I'm discontented, or—or anything of that sort: the truth is, ever since I left off school I wanted something to do, and had it in my mind to speak to you about it."

With this I looked at Tom, fearing he might be vexed; but he did not look vexed, only preoccupied;

"I do know of a place as it happens," he said, after a while, "only I'm not sure how it would suit you."

"That's soon seen," said I. "What is like?"

"Well, it's a sort of—general usefulness."

"Why, it must be run errands," said I, laughing. "And where is it, Tom?"

"Well," said Tom, hesitating again, "it's with me."

"How very nice!" I exclaimed. "How soon can I have it?"

"The sooner the better, so far as I am concerned," said Tom, and with that he turned around and looked at me, and directly I met his eyes I knew somehow, all in a moment, what it was he meant; and I knew, too, that I could not have passed all my life with Will Broomly, and why I could not.

I am sure Lettie Walters, who interrupted us just then, must have thought my wits were wandering that evening, and indeed they were, for I was completely dazed with the sudden turn things had taken. But Tom, who had the advantage of me there, took it quite coolly, and laughed and talked with Lettie just the same as ever till she went away.

It was pretty late when we went in—Mother sat where we had left her, knitting in the twilight.

"Wasn't that Letty Walters with you a while ago?" she said as we came up.

"Yes," said I, with a confused feeling of something being necessary; "she just came to bring the new crochet pattern she promised me."

"H'm!" said mother, as to say she had her own ideas as to what Lettie came for.

Tom had been wandering about the room in an absent sort of fashion, taking up and putting down in the wrong place all the small objects that fell in his way. He came up and took a seat by mother. I became of a sudden very busy with the plants in the window, for I knew he was going to tell her.

"Wish me joy, Aunt Annie," said he, it's all settled."

"Settled is it?" said mother in anything but a joyful tone. "So it's as I suspected all along. Well, you have my best wishes, Tom; perhaps you may be happy together, after all—I'm sure I hope so."

This wasn't a very encouraging sort of congratulation, and Tom seemed rather taken back by it.

"I'm sorry you're not pleased," he said after a pause; "I had an idea you would be."

"I don't know from what you judged—But then it's no use crying over spilt milk. You'll be married directly, I suppose. I must be looking out for a house;" and mother stroked her nose reflectively with a knitting needle.

"What for?" said Tom. "I thought of keeping on here all the same."

"I never supposed otherwise," said mother. "Of course I did not expect to turn you out of your own house."

"But what is the need of looking out for another, then?"

"Why, for myself."

"For yourself!" repeated Tom in a tone of utter amzement. "Going to leave us—just now? Why, Aunt Anne, I never heard of such a thing!"

"Now, Tom," said mother, speaking very fast and making her needles fly in consert, "we might as well come to an understanding at once on this subject. I am fully sensible of your past kindness—now just let me finish—I say I appreciate it, and have tried to do my duty by you in return, as I hope I should always be ready to do. I wish all good to you and your wife, and shall be glad to help her if ever I can, but to live in the same house with her is what would turn out pleasatly for neither of us, and, once for all, I can't do it."

"Aunt Anne," said Tom, pushing back his chair and staring in mother's excited face, "either you or I must be out of wits."

"It's not me, then, at any rate," retorted mother, getting nettled.

Amusement and a certain embarressment had kept me a silent listener so far, but there was no standing this, I tried to speak, but could not for laughing.

"I think you are all out of your wits together," said mother turning sharply—What ails the child? It's no laughing matter."

"You don't understand each other," I gasped; "oh, dear! it—it's not Lettie—oh—oh, dear!" and relapsed again.

"Not Lettie?" repeated mother, turning to Tom. "Then why did you tell me so?"

"I never told you so," said Tom.

"Why, yes you did," persisted mother.—"You came in and told me you were going to be married."

"Yes, so I am," said Tom, still at cross-purposes.

"Now, Tom Dear," said mother, rising an confronting him. "What do you mean?" Who is going to be your wife?"

"Why, May, of course," answered Tom.

"May!" And then, after a pause of inexpressible astonishment, it was mothers turn to laugh. "Do you mean to say Tom, it was that child you were thinking of all the time?"

"Why, who else could it be?" said Tom, simply.

"Well," said mother, "I ought to have remembered you never did do anything like anybody else. But, still, why did you go to work in such a roundabout way?"

"I wanted to see how you took my idea," said Tom.

"And how do you suppose we were to guess your idea meant May?" mother asked.

"Who else could it be?" repeated Tom, falling back on what he evidently found an unanswerable argument. It was no use talking to him. Mother gave it up with a shake of the head

"And you won't want another house, then, Aunt Anne?" said Tom suddenly.—That set mother off again. Tom joined with her, and altogether I don't think we ever passed a merrier evening than the one that made us acquainted with Tom's wife.—Appleton's Journal.

Miscellaneous.

The Liquor Interest.

Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching: how many of them? Sixty thousand! Sixty full regiments, every man of which will, before twelve months shall have completed their course, lie down in the grave of a drunkard! Every year during the past decade has witnessed the same sacrifice; and sixty regiments stand behind this army ready to take its place. It is to be recruited from our children and our children's children. "Tramp, tramp, tramp,"—the sounds come to us in the echoes of the footsteps of the army just expired; tramp, tramp, tramp,—the earth shakes with the tread of the host now passing; tramp, tramp, tramp, comes to us from the camp of the recruits. A great tide of life flows resistlessly to its death. What in God's name are they fighting for? The privilege of pleasing an appetite, of conforming to a social usage, of filling sixty thousand homes with shame and sorrow, of loading the public with the burden of pauperism, of crowding our prison-houses with felons, of detracting from the productive industries of the country, of ruining fortunes and breaking hopes, of breeding disease and wretchedness, of destroying both body and soul in hell before their time.

The prosperity of the liquor interest, covering every department of it, depends entirely on the maintainance of this army. It cannot live without it. So long as the liquor interest maintains its present prosperous condition, it will cost America the sacrafice of 60,000 men every year. The effect is inseperable from the cause. The cost to the country of the liquor traffic is a sum so stupendous that any figures which we should dare to give would covict us of trifling. The amount of life absolutely destroyed, the amount of industry sacrificed, the amount of bread transformed in to poison, the shame, the unavailing sorrow, the crime, the poverty, the pauperism, the brutality, the wild waste of vital and financial resources, make an aggregate so vast—so incalculably vast, that the only wonder is that the American people do not rise up as one man and declare that this great curse shall exist no longer. Dilletantte conventions are held on the subject of peace, by men and women who find it necessary to fiddle to keep themselves awake. A hue and cry is raised against woman suffrage, as if any wrong which may be involved in woman's lack of suffrage, could be compared to the wrongs attached to the liquor interest.

Does any sane woman doubt that women are suffering a thousand times more from rum that from any political disability?

The truth is that there is no question before the American people to-day that begins to match in importance the temperance question. The question of American Slavery was never anything but a baby by the side of this; and we prophesy that within ten years, if not within five, the whole country will be awake to it and divided upon it. The organizations of the liquor interest, the vast funds at its command, the universal feeling among those whose business is pitted against the national prosperity and the public morals—these are enough to show that, upon one side of this matter, at least, the present condition of things and the social and polital questions that lie in the immediate future are apprehended. The liquor interest knows there is to be a great struggle, and is preparing to meet it. People both in this country and Great Brittain are beginning to see the enormity of this business—are beginning to realize that Christian civilization is actually poisoned at this fountain, and that there can be no purification of it until the source of the poison is dried up.—Exchange.

Fact is Stranger than Fiction.

While Hood was composing the "Song of the Shirt," and painting with the tints of despair the poor seamstress slaving in her garret, a mechanic almost equally poverty-strickened was working out in an American garret the means of her emancipation. "In poverty, hunger and dirt," Elias Howe, a native of Massachusetts, surrounded by a young family, for whom he was obliged to labor during the day, devoted his after-hours to the construction of a Sewing Machine. This was about the year 1841, and his career since that period up to the present time affords an episode in the annals of intelligent labor pregnant with incidents, and checkered with the lights and shades, which afford another illustration of the old saying that "fact is stranger than fiction." Judicial investigations have demonstrated, in the clearest manner, that to Howe, and to him alone belongs the credit of inventing the first Sewing Machine. His latest achievement "The New Improved Machine," has created a demand almost beyond the power of the Manufactory to supply. F. L. KURTZ, Hertford & Elizabeth City.

A HORRIBLE STREET SCENE.—A Mooers correspondent writes us that one day last week a dog was seen dragging a human skeleton through the streets of that town, scattering portions of it as he went along. This strange scene naturally produced the most intense excitement among the citizens, who, on examining the village cemetery found that a grave had been desecrated by some persons for the sake of plunder, as is surmised—who after accomplishing their ghoulish purposes left the skeleton unburied. And now comes the strangest part of the strange affair. An old resident of the town says that many years ago a companion of his told him a dream which he had just had. He dreamed that he died and was buried, and that a dog came and dug him from his grave. Now it was found on enquiry that the man who dreamed this was buried in the very grave that was desecrated. Truth is stranger than fiction.—Plattsburg N. Y. Republican, August 2.

THE EXPLORATION OF THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS—THE HIGHEST MOUNTAINS IN NORTH AMERICA.—Prof. Hayden, writing on the 23d ult., from the camp on the west slopes on the Rocky Mountains, reports that his expedition had attained the summit of Mount Lincoln, and ascertained its elevation to be 14,300 feet. From this point at least fifteen mountains were seen which are 14,000 feet above the sea level, and 250 having altitudes of 13,000 feet above tide-water, while on the summit of Mount Lincoln the desired peak was revealed, which bears the name of "Holy Cross," and is computed to be 17,600 feet high. On its eastern face are two deep fissures, crossing each other at right angles, making a perfect cross, and which at all seasons of the year are filled with snow. This mountain is believed to be the highest in North America.

THE LOVERS' FATAL RIDES.—There is a young lady living in Highland county, Ohio, whose lot in her matrimonial aspirations, seems to be a peculiarly severe one. She was to be married to a worthy young man named Moses Patton, and last Saturday afternoon, as he was on his way to visit her, a violent thunder storm arose, and he and his horse were killed. About two years ago a brother of young Patton, who was at the time engaged to the same young lady, while on his way to visit her, with his marriage license in his pocket, was thrown from his horse and killed.

The oldest of all rose bushes is said to be one which is trained upon one side of the cathedral of Hildesheim, in Germany. The root is buried under the crypt, below the choir. The stem is a foot thick, and half a dozen branches nearly cover the eastern side of the church, bearing countless flowers in summer. Its age is unknown, but documents exist which prove that a Bishop Hezilo, nearly a thousand years ago, protected it by a stone roof, which is still extant.

"Doesn't this lovely scene animate you?" asked Anna of the lover. "No," said he, "nothing but you can Anna-mate me!" O, say yes, my darling." She did say yes, and his cup of animation was full.

Why is a vain young lady like a confirmed drunkard? Because neither of them are satisfied with the moderate use of the glass.

THE RAIL ROAD SUBSCRIPTION QUESTION.

A somewhat remarkable scene occurred in the Commissioners office at this place on Monday. The three Commissioners residing in town were convened and by a vote of only 2 for it, a resolution was adopted "rescinding" the subscription regularly and legally made by the Chairman. Of course this does not amount to anything. The Board was not regularly called, nor was there a full meeting. Even had there been the Board cannot go back on its own action after having been voted on and ratified by the people. The Commissioners are not the masters; they are only the servants of the people. The following is a copy of the subscription made:

In compliance with a resolution and order of the Board of Commissioners of Pasquotank County, adopted at a regular meeting of the Board July 7th, 1873, authorising and instructing their Chairman to "subscribe the sum of Forty Thousand Dollars to the capital stock of the 'Atlantic Coast Railway Company,'" when the same shall be approved by the qualified electors of said county. The same having been approved as provided at the general election held on the 7th day of this month: therefore I the undersigned Chairman of the aforesaid Board of Commissioners, hereby subscribe for Four Hundred shares, of one hundred dollars each, of the capital stock of said Atlantic Coast Railway Company amounting to Forty Thousand Dollars; payable in county Bonds, drawn payable twenty years after date, bearing interest at the rate of six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually; as follows viz: One half of said amount, or Twenty Thousand Dollars of said Bonds when the said Railway Company shall have graded its line across the said county of Pasquotank, and the balance, Twenty Thousand Dollars when the said Railway Company shall have completed the said road from Norfolk to Elizabeth City. It is understood and agreed that the said railroad shall pass by way of Elizabeth City, and within one half mile of the corporate limits of said City. This subscription is made with the following reservation, viz.

If the work of construction shall not be commenced by the aforesaid Company on or before the first day of March 1874, this agreement shall be null and void at the option of the Chairman of the Board of Commissioners.

It is understood that on payment of this subscription the said Railway Company shall deliver to the proper officers of this county a certificate for stock of the amount as aforesaid.

C. W. SMITH,

Date E. City, N. C.,
Aug. 11th, 1873.

It will be seen that it is carefully guarded so far as the interest of the county is concerned and that it likewise makes it impossible for any individual who may have "an axe to grind" to use either the County or the Company to advance any selfish or personal interest.

Now all this foolishness must cease or the building of the railroad by way of Elizabeth City, will be frustrated. The Company offer all the reasonable guarantees that the people require, but they do not propose to submit to any dictation as to how they shall manage their own affairs. If they build the road they will be entitled to the Bonds: if they do not they neither ask for or expect—indeed cannot get a cent. We want the road. The people want it. It is not for us; it is not for any man to first demand of a Company to build it and then to dictate how they shall do it.

The following letter, which is a copy of the reply to the notice sent the Secretary, has just been handed us for publication. We do so that the public may fully understand the whole matter.

Office Atlantic Coast Railway Co.,
E. City, N. C., Aug. 19, 1873.

To the Chairman and Board of Commissioners of Pasquotank Co:

Gentlemen:—Your favor of the 18, inst. transmitting a copy of resolution and order passed at a meeting held on that day is received. I have carefully examined your order and resolutions of July 7th, and of the 4th inst.; and with the most sincere respect to your Honorable Board must say that I am fully advised that the action of your Chairman in making the subscription of the 11th inst. to Four Hundred Shares of the Capital Stock of the Company I have the honor to represent is legal and in consonance with the spirit of the above mentioned orders of your Board. Being so advised our Company will immediately proceed with the work of construction so soon as the promised subscriptions of the five counties are complete, and when the conditions of the subscription of this County is filled on the part of our Company we will expect the delivery of the bonds as stipulated in the subscription.

Any change in the phraseology of the subscsiption that may be desired on the part of your Board, in keeping with the spirit of the above recited orders, will be most cheerfully acceded to on our part, while matters not contemplated in the orders voted upon by the people could not be entertained by our Company.

I have the honor to remain your obedient servant,

W. A. GREENLEAF,
Secretary
Atlantic Coast Railway Co.

A WORD TO THOSE DESIRING TO EMIGRATE FROM THE NORTHERN CITIES.

It is not generally known by the parties making up the Colonies formed in the Northern Cities for immigration to the West, that their leaders generally locate them in partially settled sections of the country, their object being an eye to political preferment and future official pickings or large personal gain in the sale of lots or land. These colonists are usually taken to the extreme border of settlement. This might do for farmers and for persons accustomed to rustic life, who of course could make themselves useful at once; but the bulk of these city colonies is generally of clerks and mechanics whose knowledge of farming is yet in embryo, and whose fingers in that line would be "all thumbs" for a long time. A mason, a carpenter, and a blacksmith might soon be of use: and excepting these, all others must at once go to tilling the soil. Now what kind of a farmer a clerk—who never handled anything heavier than a pen—would make, if his immediate subsistence depended upon it we leave him to answer. And we want him to think it over.

It is very certain that many who join these colonies in a fit of romance, or without thought or knowledge of the great change they are about to make, or the character of the men under whose leadership they are about to venture, come to grief which could not occur were they to depend as much upon themselves as they do upon their leaders and investigate the subject.

To all city colonist we would say, "settle in some organized country"—come to the Eastern counties of North Carolina. Here we have room for all. Here we have occupation for skilled machanics. Here the clerk may try his hand at farming, and if not successful may go to schoolteaching. Here can be had handsome farms or wild land. Here can be had small or large places, more or less improved, and in many instances, nay, in every instance at less than the cost of improvements. Here we have churches and schoolhouses and roads. Soon we will have a railroad, being located on the through line from New York, Norfolk and Charleston. Here we have good society and all the comforts of civilized life. Send your locating committees this way. There is an abundance of room for more population.

THE RAISING OF STOCK

It is individual resources that make up the wealth of the State. Where the people become rich the State will be independent. The man who makes two spears of grass or two heads of cattle or of horses grow where but one grew before, creates wealth. He augments the wages of labor and the profit of capital by increasing the productive power of land. More wants are supplied from the invention of his genius and erudition. The public will be better served by increasing our flocks of sheep, our herds of cattle, our stock of horses and by developing our agricultural resources.

There are ten million head of horses in the United States, worth in exchangable value at $50 per head, $500,000,000. The value of domestic animals in the United States in 1870, was $175,000,000. This vast division of industry is a significant item that contributes to national wealth. Our annual productions are in advance of the nations of the world. It is significant of material strength, individual wealth and the public security.

But here in the South, where stock raising could be engaged in so successfully and profitably, it has been wonderfully neglected. It is a mistake. Our people need to turn their attention to it. It will pay. And the pursuit is laudable. The animal creation is indispensible to human existence. They are the natural agents to feed and clothe mankind. The horse transports, the ox feeds and the sheep clothes. They are among the great sources of wealth and power. Let more attention be paid to the subject.

THE ROAD LAWS.

In reply to our correspondent from Manteo, Dare County, we have to submit the following:

1st. "How many days a week does the law compel a man to work on the road and how many hours in a day?"

The whole matter is left in the discretion of the Overseer of the road. He may compel hands to work as many days and as many hours in a day as he may deem necessary.

2nd. "Who is exempt from road duty?"

The following persons to wit: Justices of the peace, constables, keepers of public grist mills, wardens of the poor, patrolers, teachers and pupils of schools, ministers of the gospel, and lock keepers on the Dismal Swamp Canal, and all persons under 18 and over 45 years of age.

3rd "How may a man be warned on the road?"

The Overseer shall give him three days notice to appear at a certain place with certain tools, for the purpose of working on the road.

4th "If a man fails to work on the road what must be done?"

He may be warranted and brought before a magistrate, and if convicted shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than two or more than five dollars, and shall be imprisoned if he fail to satisfy the judgment of the Court.

5th "Who has the power to lay off a public road to the water?"

The Board of Trustees have this power in their respective townships. An appeal from this decision may be taken to the County Commissioners and from them to the Superior and Supreme Courts.

NAGS HEAD.

"DARE" a correspondent of the Norfolk Journal from Nag Head, after describing the locality, its history and surroundings, closes his letter thus:

Within the past few years a hotel and a good many cottages have been erected—several this season—and Messrs. Perry & Wood, of Elizabeth City, have built a large and commodious hotel, first-class in every respect.

The fishing, bathing and sailing facilities here, are unsurpassed. As a place for rest or quiet enjoyment, it is delightful. A quiet ramble over the hills, a moonlight stroll upon the beach, an evening's sail on the Albemarle, with a probable visit to Roanoke Island and the site of the old fort of the first settlers, traces of which still remain, or a drive at low water upon the hard, smooth beach, or to the fresh ponds, a fishing or shooting expedition, with a dance at night, and the company of ladies that would grace any watering place, all these render Nags Head a most attractive place.

THE PARTY OF THE FUTURE.

The cry of the Democrats of Ohio is "The Old Guard dies, but never surrenders."

This heroic cry, we fear, comes too late. The Democratic party has had its Waterloo. Under some other name and party organization, the Conservatives must combat Radicalism.

The above is from the Charlotte Observer, a leading democratic paper of this State. The Democratic party is dead, there is no doubt about that, and it will be some time yet before any successor can be organized to successfully combat the party in power. The people prefer "leaving well enough alone" to risking any change.

"Fourteen years for stealing a horse and five years for killing a man is the schedule of penalties in Texas."—Ex.

This looks a little at first blush, but then it must be remembered that, while a horse will cost you a hundred dollars in Texas, you can buy some of her men—a member of the Legislature, for instance—for one third of the amount.

Our Jail doors are open, but we almost blush to say that they have to be closed on two of our county men, from Saturday evening until Sunday morning—bad whisky the cause.—Danbury Reporter.

The people of Danbury must have better whisky or use less of it. Better to use none at all.

Thus far seventy-two bodies of the victims of the "Wawaset" disaster referred to last week have been recovered. The loss of life was larger than at first reported.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE for September is rich in literary novelties, and also gives a fine display of the new Fall Fashions. DEMOREST seems to outbid all his cotemporaries in the value of Premiums to this subscribers; he announces an astounding offer for 1874, of the large and celebrated chromo, "The Old Oaken Bucket," after Jerome Thompson, ond several other equally large and valuable Chromos, "The Captive Child," "Home, Sweet Home," and "After the Storm," for the ensuing three years, worth $15 each. This is certainly unparalled, and we wonder how it can be done. Send for Circular. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, 838 Broadway, N. Y.

DEMOREST'S YOUNG AMERICA is as full of novelties as an egg is full of meat. The September No. of this entertaining Juvenile Monthly will be a valuable accession to any family of children. An announcement is made that hereafter it will be furnished at $1.00 per year, with a valuable Premium. Girls and Boys will please note this. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, 838 Broadway, N. Y.

OUR CORRESPONDENCE

Letter from Coleraine, N. C

COLERAINE, N. C.,
August 14th, 1873.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

On the 7th inst., an election was held at Coleraine, N. C., for the officers of Coleraine Township, etc. Much interest was manifested and excitement reigned. Shrewd electioneering and secret conspiracies were in the ascendency all day long as well as a few days previous. Norfleet Green, who, previous to a few months ago, was, as titled by his conservative antagonists, an ultra, a unionleager and a crafty radical, and who recently has been charged with betraying his party for reasons which can be accurately conjectured, was nominated a candidate for the magistracy of Coleraine Township by the quandam genuine conservative element of said Township. His colleague was one of these same professed but degenerate conservatives. His competitor was his former comrade in republican politics, but a member of more honest pretentions, of truer allegiance, and of better political standing and principles than himself.

These once genuine, pure-hearted and whole-soul conservatives, hitherto sarcastic and persistent in their incessant imputations and accusations against Green, of all manner of indecent and illicit conduct both as a gentleman and a citizen, and reserving their bitterest language to censure and stigmatize him, now, notwithstanding their condemnation of his past conduct and their former bitternes and asperity towards him, all living in vivid magnitude in their memories, exultantly come forward and vote, almost man to man, for this crafty, wavering and equivocating republican, a treacherous man in any party. Impenitent of any social transgression, and unreformed of any political crime he was received with a cordial heart and hand into full fellowship upon their prided ticket.

To attain selfish ends and to gratify an odious prejudice was the burning impulse that prompted their course of action: and in Green they found a heart that would yield to their influence, and advocate of their selfish interests, and a proselyte who would adjudicate in their favor. It is said by some that Green is not impregnable to the temptation of proffered bribes while acting in a judiciary capacity. It is said by some that he is traitorious when operated upon by the power of promised and anticipated reward; and they profess to reason from evident and repeated demonstrations.

But the conspiracy was shattered and the plotters were foiled in the defeat of Green by circumstances considered, as handsome majority. His opponent was elected, and the seemingly fair prospects of the would-be-jubilant conservative-radical conspirators vanished as a morning vapor. Their hopeful anticipations were blasted into a boisterous tumult. Their anger, fortunately exploded and evaporated without doing any injury.

Degeneration, demoralization and apostacy are stamped upon the conservative brow of Coleraine Township. Let them no longer raise the voice of calumny against the republican party. Let them no longer rebuke the latter for inconsistency and wrong. Let them henceforth refrain from their virtuperations, and hieneous charges of dishones statesmanship. They have associatd themselves with the republican party unsought, and chose as their confederate and leader in this Township the most unworthy and apostate member of the party. Let them chronicle this occasion in their annals as an epoch to which they may henceforth animadvert with shame.

Do People read Advertisements?

There is now and then a person so stupid as to believe that advertisements in the newspapers are not generally read, and that money expended in advertising is practically wasted. Even such will concede that if a hundred men of polite address, of fluent speech and ready wit were to call daily on an hundred others and get the ears of each long enough to say Jno. Smith, or Jones, or Thompson at such a place, has such and such goods at such prices, or would sell a farm, or house and lot, or had lost a horse or pocket-book, or would loan money, etc.,—we say such men will concede that the service of one hundred men would be of great value to Smith or Jones, and in some measure advantageous to the party to whom the statement was made. This hundred men could not be employed to go from door to door and make this statement to ten thousand people at less than a cost of several hundred dollars each trip. All this is done by the newspapers at the cost of a few shillings, or a few dollars at most, and the visits are made week after week, day after day. The messenger who travels addresses himself to the ear and takes the party addressed when he may have his thoughts absorbed in business or other matters; but the newspaper reaches the party through the eye, when the reader has his thoughts solely fixed on the paper before him.

But those who affect to believe that there is little use in advertising urge as an objection that advertisements are not read. They can be easily convinced of their error in this respect by making inquiry. Let them insert an advertisement offering to purchase some article that is tolerably plenty in market, and they will be flooded with offers to sell before the ink of the advertisement is dry. An enterprising weekly that has a circulation of one two or three thousand copies is in a position to do the village merchant great good, and for which, as a rule, the publisher does not get one-fourth of what he justly deserves. In its sphere the weekly is of quite as much service to the advertiser as is the daily, and oftentimes it enjoys the privilege of being the exclusive family visitor, a privilege the daily has.—Union and Advertiser, Rochester, N. Y.

Reviving old Issues.

Ohio and Kentucky seem to have joined hands to fix up the issues for the next political campaign. Ohio contributes the old-Bourbon obstinacy of Thurman, the Cincinnati Enquirer, and the brass-mounted leaders generall, who insist upon another fight on the old battle ground. The contribution of Kentucky is about equally important; the latest illustration of it we find in the following dispatch, reprinted from Tuesday's papers:

"A band of Ku Klux raided the farm of Mrs. Mason Brown, mother of B. Gratz Brown, in Owen County, Ky., Friday night, killed Louis Wilson (colored), burned his house down, and damaged other property. The farm contained large growing crops of corn and tobacco, which it will be difficult to harvest in the absence of the laborers driven off by Ku Klux. Other farms were visited by them and the owners warned against employing negroes as workmen. It is said the Ku Klux came from Henry County."

We commence this little item of news, first, to the late Liberal candidate for Vice President, who used to express so much confidence that there was no longer any danger of disorders at the South; and second, to the pocket-convention of new-party men who met at Columbus. It makes no particular difference whether the colored laborer, whose life was taken and whose house was burned, worked on a farm owned by a Brown or a Green, or a person of any other name; but the little incident may happen to attract somewhat more attention because of its connection with a name recently blazoned on a great many political banners, and will serve the better to satisfy people what sort of disorders yet occur in States like Kentucky.

Death of Geo. N. Saunders.

A telegram from New York announces the death of the well-known George N. Saunders, who prior to the war was an active Kentucky politician, and during the war was an agent of the Confederate States in Canada. He was a man of remarkable resources in the management of secret service, and many strange anecdotes are related of his methods of gaining information and conducting espionage during his agency in Canada. Since the war he has spent most of his time in Canada and Europe.

An enthusastic friend of the American centennial celebration, writing to a prominent official in this city suggests that at noon (Washington time) on the 4th of July, 1876, all the guns, the bells, locomotive and other land whistles, the trumpets, the drums, the organs, and other musical instruments, with the millions of voices in our great land, burst forth in sounds of joy and praise. He also proposes that similar demonstrations take place abroad, intimation being given of the time through the Cable.

Summary of News.

Boston is counting its smells, to see if they equal those of Colonge in number.

Henry Clay used to advise young men not to pursue any of the professions, but go into "business."

When a man and woman are made one by a clergyman, the question is, which is the one.

Lawerence, Kansass is building what is to be "the finest swimming bath west of the Mississippi River."

It is thought the constitutional amendments have been adapted by a majority of twenty thousand votes.

A Colored military company has been organized in Bertie county, and application has been made to the Governor for arms.

The people of Atlanta, Ga., are listening to the "deep base nots" of an Aligator, which is wading about beneath the city in the sewer.

"Owing to the death of the editor there won't be any Leader Tuesday," says a Wisconsin weekly, "but look out for an old ripper on Wednesday."

A Detroit man threw cold water on the desire of a burglar who was trying to get in his front door, by dropping the water pitcher on his head from the second story window.

Kate Williams, of Peoria, Ill., knocked her lover flat to the ground because he insisted upon kissing her the third time at the garden gate on a moonlight night recently. It was her limit.

A Pittsburg man called a young lady his "precious darling little honey-dew of a blooming rosebud," and then stood a breach of promise suit before he would marry her. Naughty man!

It takes time to learn. A young man in Matton received a postal card lately, and after tearing at it a while, said to the Postmaster, "See here, Mister, I can't get the darned thing open!"

The Controller of the Currency has issued a circular to National Banks, saying that hence forth $10 notes will only be printed from the new plates, the cost of which is to be reimbursed by the banks.

The Treasury Department has prepared a circular stating that persons writing for official documents after this must send postage to insure attention to their applications.

On account of Indian outrages along the frontier in Texas, there is great excitement in Fair City, Peria's Bridge, and Brady's Creek, and the people are abandoning their homes and crops.

The Postmaster-General has decided to submit several plans to Congress for the enlargement of the Post-Office Department. At present it is far too small for the efficient transaction of public business.

A Cincinnati young man, who had read in the city papers that Cleveland girls always replied, "you bet," when tendered an offer of marriage, tried the experiment with one of them, and the only reply he got was "you get!"

Mr. Thomas McKee of Alleghany, Pennsylvania, has died, leaving to his only child, Nettie Adelia, a fortune of from fifteen hundred thousand to two millions of dollars. It is "rarely seldom" that you see so lovily a creature as Nettie Adelia now is.

A lady stopping at Cape May who lost her husband by shipwreck, used to go down on the beach and await his coming hours. Lately, however, a gay old bachelor goes down and waits with her, and now she stays longer than ever. But she does seem near so sad when she returns.

John J. Snider recently died at the poor house in this county at the advanced age of one hundred and six years. It is said that he was a German by birth, and served with Blucher on the immortal battle field of Waterloo. It is also said in connection with his history, that he served in the Revolutionary war of '76, between this country and Great Britain.—Statesville Intelligencer.

Prof. McIver, Superintendent of Public Instruction, returned to Raleigh on Tuesday week from Elmyra, New York, where he has been in attendance on the Fourteenth Annual meeting of the National Education Association. The Professor informs us that there were about 500 delegates in attendance, representing 29 States of the Union.

Says the Raleigh News: From a friend we learn that a Miss Epps, an estimable young lady, died recently from taking morphene under the impression that it was quinine. At the time of the fatal occuranc, Miss Epps was on a visit to the family of Dr. Jones, Mecklingburg county, Va., near the North Carolina line. She was about 21 years of age, and greatly beloved by all who knew her.

The domestic develelopments in the case of Brigham Young's seventeenth wife, who has made a singular application for a divorce, do not add much to our information in regard to the real character of Mormonism. But they fully justify the conclusions to which every intelligent traveller who has visited Salt Lake City has come, that, from the head down, it is one of the grossest system of imposture, and sensuality, and covetousness that the world has ever known. How to abate the moral nuisance is one of the problems of the age.

The Post Office Department has made requisitions on the contractors for 51,126,800 cards. Of this number 44,113,000 have been sent to postmasters, leaving orders unfilled in the hands of the contractors amounting to 7,008,800. Add to this the number of cards ordered by postmasters and not yet forwarded to the contractors, viz.: 10,331,600 and there is a total deficiancy in supplying orders, of 17,340,400. It lacks a few days of three months since the first cards were issued. It was estimated at the Department that 100,000,000 would be required to supply the demand for the first year. This estimate was too low, for already the orders from postmasters aggregate 61,458,400.

A FATAL RUNAWAY.—STAMPEDE OF COACH HORSES ON THE WHITE MOUNTAINS—Bethlehem, August 11th.—Six horses attached to the morning stage between Crawford and the Profile House ran away to-day, upsetting the coacn on Whitcomb's Hill in this town, instantly killing G. R. Donell Kierl, of Baltimore, and fatally injuring A. S. Butler, a banker from Allegan, Michigan, who has since died. The following were also injured: Mr. and Mrs. Reeves, of Phœnixville, Pa., probably fatally: Chauncy G. Harrington, of Worcester, seriously: Austin G. Fox and G. Fox, of New York, seriously; G. S. Fox, slightly; Miss Emma Kennedy, of Indianapolis, slightly; Mrs. Culbert, son and daughter, of Ironton, Ohio, slightly; Mrs. La Croix, of Ironton, Ohio, arm broken and slightly injured on the head. It is believed that all the injured persons, with the exception possibly of Mr. and Mrs. Reeves, will recover. The accident was caused by the breaking of a pole strap.

The wife of Senator Schurz is mentioned as having inherited $170,000 from her uncle, lately dead, in Hamburg.

The Museum of Ashland is said to have acquired "Henry Clay's court dress, worn at the treaty of Ghent."

A wag who read about the mountains being bathed in sunlight from top to base, wanted to know how much soap the operation required.

The Texas cattle plague which has prevailed in Decatb, Davis, Nodaway, and other counties in Northwest Missouri for two weeks past, has carried off several thousands head and the disease is still raging. In Nodaway county alone, the loss already amounts to over $50,000.

That Favorite Home Remedy,

PAIN-KILLER.

Has been before the public over THIRTY YEARS, and probably has a wider and better reputation than any other proprietary medicine of the present day. At this period there are but few unacquainted with the merits of PAIN-KILLER; but, while some extol it as a liniment, they know but little of its power in easing pain when taken internally; while others use it internally with great success, but are equally ignorant of its healing virtues when applied externally. We therefore wish to say to all, that it is equally successful, whether used internally or externally.

It is sufficient evidence of its virtues as a standard medicine to know that it is now used in all parts of the world, and that its sale is constantly increasing. No curative agent has had such a wide spread sale or given such universal satisfaction.

DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER is a purely vegetable compound, prepared from the best and purest materials, and with a care that insures the most perfect uniformity in the medicine; and while it is a most effective remedy for pain, it is a perfectly safe medicine, even in the most unskillful hands.

After over thirty years trial, it is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Eminent Physicians commend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery, or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency, and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the standard medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and all other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma, and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony to be an invaluable medicine.

We would caution the public against all imitations of our preparation, either in name, or style of putting up.

NORTH CAROLINIAN

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 20, 1873.

☞ TO NORTHERN VISITORS.☜

Elizabeth City is 50 miles South East of Norfolk, Va. Parties coming here from the North should take passage on the Bay line steamers which leave Baltimore at 4 P. M. evening, and arrive at Portsmouth the next morning in time to connect with the Elizabeth City Steamers daily.

THIS WEEK'S ADVERTISEMENTS.

We call attention to the following new advertisement this issue. [illegible] Kentucky University.

Local and Personal.

☞ We are indebted to our former townsman Wm. H. Clark Esq. for late copies of the Cape May Daily Wave.

☞ S. S. Fowler and family and Rev. P. W. Melick and family are off on a visit to Pensylvania, to be absent a month or more.

☞ Mrs. A. E. Pool has kindly remembered us by the presentation of a fine lot of Pears. Such favors an editor cannot fail to appreciate.

☞ A cotemporary says that in his [illegible] both politics and religion are at a [illegible]. The first is advisable, but the [illegible] is fearful in its consequences.

☞ Dr. Butt and family have returned from Nag's Head, all very much benefitted. The Doctor informs us that he has gained over [illegible] lbs. in weight.

☞ Our correspondents from Nag's Head report that the new Hotel of Perry & Wood, continues to be crowded. Over two hundred persons took breakfast on Monday.

☞ Hon. [illegible] W. A[illegible] held court in Salisbury last week. He has spent the past month holding court in the Western part of the State. Our exchanges speak of him in the highest terms.

☞ The Colored people of Woodville and vicinity will hold a Mass Meeting in the interests of Education on the 23d. A number of speakers have been invited to be present, and deliver addresses.

☞ In the Second Senatorial District the official majority for Dr. E. Ransom and S. L. Johnson, Republicans, over Gregory and Lucas, Democrats, was 1156. Tyrrell county gave [illegible] Republican majority.

☞ Our town is now almost deserted, so many of our citizens, with their families, are away, gone to Nag's Head; others off to the mountains, and still others on a visit to the North—all off to recuperate and gather fresh strength for life's battles. That they may enjoy themselves and return refreshed and invigorated is our earnest hope.

☞ Blood will tell. A man with the instincts of a black guard will become one as naturally as water runs down hill. When a man of this sort exhibits himself in our office he need not be surprised at receiving the contempt his conduct merits. We have seen "tempests in a teapot" before—indeed so often that it no longer disturbs our equanimity.

☞ Mr. N. R. Zimmerman of this place has great success in grape culture. He has a fine variety and under his intelligent management they are all a success. On passing his place the other day he called us into his yard and showed us a sample of the "California Grape" a new variety here. It is one of the most prolific bearers we ever saw and its flavor is very fine. He is also experimenting with Hops. He informs us that he is satisfied they could be grown here to profit. On his vines we found them varying from 2 to [illegible] inches in length.

☞ The question of "A Student" is not an improper one. We give our opinion freely. We believe that the Creator made the day for labor and the night for rest. Many persons, ah, too many, are awake when the exhaustion occasioned by work should be undergoing repair. The individual who does not labor during the day is violating one of the great laws of nature, and those who do not sleep during the night need not expect to escape the penalty that, sooner or later, must inevitably follow. We are firm in the belief that the man who shortens his life by an important neglect of the laws of nature is as guilty of suicide as he who lays violent hands upon himself.

☞ We hear some talk being made about the cost of grading the Railroad. It is not generally known that the contract made includes clearing and grubbing, grading, ditching, surfacing and tamping, crossties, bridges and culverts, track laying, building of water tanks and wood sheds, fencing, putting up the telegraph, etc. And it is further specifically stipulated that in sub-letting the work preference shall be given to parties along the line. The average cost on the work above enumerated on the railroads of the country already built being so much higher than the Company claimed this could be done for, it became necessary for a responsible party to bind himself to build it at the reduced estimate before capitalists would agree to offer the required aid.

☞ A. H. Hershey, of Centre County Pa., having formed a co-partnership with Dr. Underwood, is improving the Mill property on Factory Avenue by adding to it a large Saw Mill and an extensive Shingle Factory. A forty horse power engine, with adequate boilers, new machinery, and two first class Shingle Machines are to be put in. Mr. Hershey is a practical shingle manufacturer, having had years of successful experience. The new firm expect to be able to start their works early in September. This establishment with the larger Mill of Messrs. Whitcomb, the one in successful operation by Bush, Conrow and Lippincott, and the smaller one of W. W. Griffin, will make Elizabeth City an important center for the manufacture of lumber.

☞ M. B. Culpepper Esq., has laid a twin, or double peach, on our table. It is a curiosity.

☞ Salomonsky's have decided not to stay behind, but to be up to the progress of the day in improvement. They are at work refitting and modernizing their building, adapting it to the times and to their increasing business. Success to all such enterprizing men. They will occupy the Whedbee building on the opposite side of the street until their own is finished.

☞ Pursuant to the resolution adopted by the Commissioners of Pasquotank County and ratified by the people at the late election, the Chairman of the Board has made, pro forma, the subscription to the "Atlantic Coast Railway Company," carefully specifying that the issue and delivery of the Bonds shall only be made on the conditions of the order adopted by the Board at their meeting on the 4th inst. The Chairman of the County Commissioners of Chowon and Mayor of Edenton have made similar subscriptions. The Chairman and Clerk of the Commissioners of Perquimans County have also issued a certificate of their order and the result of the election with the county seal affixed, and at the next meeting of the Board will make the regular subscription accordingly. Of course these county subscriptions, like those made by individuals, will be null and void if the Railroad Company does not comply with the conditions. Everything is properly and carefully guarded. Let no needless obstructions be thrown in the way, so that the work may early begin and be the sooner completed.

☞ The present is undoubtedly the critical period in the history of Elizabeth City. The turning point is just reached, and if we want to make our town what it ought to be and what it can be made we must stop talking and go to work. It won't do for us to depend upon our location and natural advantages, for while they are good things in themselves they are utterly worthless if we do not make use of the means now in our reach to utilize these advantages. The railroad subscription, so far as the county is concerned, is voted it is true, but that of itself won't build the railroad. If Elizabeth City expects to be especially benefitted her people must lay aside all petty jealousies and old fogyism and untie the strings of their purses. We cannot get something for nothing, and if we are yet ready to fence in our town and scatter camphor in the alleys to keep out the moths we had better bestir ourselves at once, even if it does cost a little money. Here, right in the City Twenty Thousand Dollars must be raised in local subscription. Two-thirds of this is already subscribed. The balance must be raised. Of course this is not a donation or a convey, for it certificates for stock will be issued, which by proper management, cannot fail to pay at least 7 per cent. If our people come forward promptly and make up this subscription, and then act together for the cities welfare, we will not only insure the building of the road to our city but can make it the most important Depot and place for business along the line. The subscriptions can be made by calling on us at our office. The sooner we act the sooner the great work we all desire will be commenced and finished.

☞ During our recent visit to Nag's Head we learned a few interesting facts about its history we never knew before. A friend informed us that his old Teacher, a talented but eccentric character named Throup, some twenty-five years ago wrote a Story, locating its scenes and incidents at Nag's Head. In it were woven fact, legend and romance. Among the characters was Dick Toler, a colored native, noted for his giant strength and powers of physical endurance. The customs and the habits of the "Bankers" were graphically delineated, among which was the traditionary tale that from time immemorial, in order to bring "grists to their mill" they were accustomed, in dark and stormy weather, to tie lanterns to horse's heads and lead them along the beach, the motion of the lantern thus suspended resembling the motion of a vessel which not unfrequently so deceived the unconscious marriners as to cause them to sail into the trap so skillfully prepared for them—the wrecked cargo affording the Bankers rich harvests of plunder. 'Tis from this Nag's Head derived its name. We were informed that a large edition of the novel was published. We'd pay a good price for a copy.

Local Briefs:—The crop prospect is improving all the time.—A crowd went down on the "Harbinger" to Nags Heed on Saturday. Because of a breakage the steamer did not get off 'til late in the evening.—Not much sickness in town, hence it is rather dull for our doctors and druggists.—New sweet potatoes are appearing in our market.—Brodrick & Smith's new building is enclosed. It is an ornament to Water Street.—The place to get boots and shoes—already made, or made to order—is at W. Green's on Road Street.—Watermelons are plenty and cheap.—The peach market is about over.—The grape market is beginning.—Messrs. Whitcombs have opened an office on Main Street, just below Court House Square.—We are having plenty of rain.

Local Port-Folio.

A Sound steamer—the Harbinger. The most demoralized man in the world—the man who moralizes and does nothing else. Notes from the watering places—bills payable for board. The hardest agricultural work on a farm—raising a mortgage. An incurable disease—the itch for office. The Bohemian's diet—what he can get. A mistake too often made in education—substituting quality for quantity. Cool and calm—true courage. The new definition of courtship—the skirmish before the regular battle begins. The best thing after a gal—a regale. A man of letters—a type-setter. A man of mark—the proof reader.

Temporary Removal

About remodeling our store, we have moved our stock into the Room lately occupied by Mr. Whedbee as a shoe store, which we will occupy until our building is ready to move into. We respectfully invite our friends and the public generally to call and see us.

Beware of Counterfeits!

JOB MOSES' SIR JAMES CLARKE'S FEMALE PILLS

Are extensively counterfeited. Dishonest Druggists endeavor to sell the counterfeits to make greater profits. The genuine have the name of Job Moses on each package. All others are worthless imitations. The genuine Pills are unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. They moderate all excessive and cure all suppression of the menses when caused by cold, inflammation, or disease. In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affections, Pains in the Back and Limbs, Fatigue on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics and Whites, they will effect a cure when all other means have failed, and although very powerful, contain nothing hurtful to the most delicate constitution.

Circular in English German and French around each bottle gives full direction and advice.

The genuine Pills are sold at most drug stores, but if your druggist cannot supply the genuine, do not be persuaded to accept any counterfeit or bogus article but send One Dollar to the sole proprietor, Job Moses, 18 Cortlandt Street, New York, with name of express office at which you will call for the package, and a bottle of the genuine Pills securely and safely packed in plain wrappers will be sent by return express.

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons or parts and have on their back the Scheme with a full explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The numbers of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000

TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to $1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets $50; Halves $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22½ Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalelled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

FOUTZ

CELEBRATED

Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

Living on a Farm.

How brightly through the mist of years,
My quiet country home appears!
My father, busy all the day
In plowing corn or raking hay;
My mother, moving with delight
Among the milk-pans silver bright;
We children, just from school set free,
Filling the garden with our glee;
The blood of life was flowing warm
When I was living on a farm.

I hear the sweet church-going bell
As o'er the fields its music fell;
I see the country neighbors round
Gathered beneath the pleasant sound;
[illegible] their homely matters o'er—
[illegible] need a little rain
[illegible] sun would do no harm
We want good weather on the farm.

When autumn came, what joy to see
The gathering of the husking bee,
To hear the voices keeping tune
Of boys and girls beneath the moon,
To mark the golden corn-ears bright!
Since I have learned the way of men
I often turn to these again,
And feel life wore its highest charm
When I was living on the farm.

Manure for Fruit Trees

It is clear that animal manures are not what is wanted for fruit trees, including grape vines, berries, etc. There may be a benefit, and usually is at first, but the quality of the fruit will suffer, and the wood and foliage are not of that healthy character which is desired. This has been noticed by Liebig and others. We have known prolific grape vines to bear more fruit, but at an expense of quality, where the contents of the privy were freely used for manuring. We have always found the best success when leaves, the weedings of the garden, chip manure and forest mould, either singly or combined, have been freely applied. These seem to contain the different materials in proper proportion, that is, the organic, the carbonaceous and the nitrogenous; the mineral needs to be supplied and nothing does this so satisfactorily as wood ashes. It supplies largely potash, which is needed. The best success, and it has been fully achieved, which we ever attained, was by applying a coat of leaves in the fall, worked into the soil in the spring, followed by weedings from the garden, clippings of the vine with other vegetable refuse, as a mulch, sprinkled over with wood ashes, leached or unleached; if the latter, more were required. This made a healthy, not excessive growth, and increased both in quality and quantity of the fruit. It makes a sourder and better keeping fruit. This with a variety of soils, but particularly a clay soil. There should be good drainage and exposure to air, or else, with a green mulch kept moist by the ashes, there might be too much humidity. For grapes this will not do. Nor will it for fruit trees if there is a close, heavy top, reaching well down, holding thus the moisture which evaporates, and inviting parasitic lodgements, which will appear in masses, mildew, rusted fruit, &c. Herbaceous material ashes, with occasional bone dust, we have found the best application for fruit trees in general, for berries, and for the grape. Apply yearly where the soil is not rich; and in the spring when the ground is dry enough spade it well. Use sparingly, if any, the strong, nitrogenous manures.—Utica Herald.

Hints for Housekeepers

The instant a person is known to have swallowed poison by design or accident, give water to drink, cold or warm, as fast as possible, a gallon or more at the time, and as fast as vomited drink more; tepid water is best, as it opens the pores of the skin and promotes vomiting, and thus gives the speediest cure to the poisonous article. If pains begin to be felt in the bowels, it shows that part at least of the poison has passed downward; the large and repeated injections of tepid water should be given, the object in both cases being to dilute the poison as quickly and as largely as possible. Do not wait for warm water—take that which is nearest at hand, cold or warm, for every second of time saved is of immense importance; at the same time send instantly for a physician, and as soon as he comes turn the case into his hands, telling him what you have done. This simple fact cannot be too widely published; it is not meant to say that drinking a gallon or two of simple water will cure many, and benefits all by its rapidly diluting quality.

After a stove has been blackened it can be kept looking very well for a long time by rubbing it with paper every morning. Rubbing with paper is a much nicer way of keeping the outside of a tea-kettle, coffee-pot, and tea-pot bright and clean than the old way of washing them with suds. Rubbing with paper is also the best way of polishing knives and tinware and spoons; they shine like new silver. For polishing mirrors, windows; lamp chimneys, &c., paper is better than dry cloth. Preserves and pickles keep much better if brown paper, instead of cloth is tied over the jar. Canned fruit is not so apt to mold if a piece of writing paper, cut to fit the can, is laid directly on the fruit. Paper is much better to put under a carpet than straw. It is warmer, thiner, and makes less noise when one walks over it. Two thicknesses of paper placed between other coverings on a bed are as warm as a quilt. If it is necessary to step upon a chair always lay a paper upon it, and thus save the paper and woodwork from damage.

Look to your Horses' Legs.

Few men who handle horses give proper attention to the feet and legs. Especially is this the case on farms. Much time is often spent in rubbing, brushing, and smoothing the hair on the sides and hips, but the feet are not examined and properly cared for. Now be it known that the feet of a horse require more care than the body; they need ten times as much, for in one respect they are almost the entire horse. All the grooming that can be done won't avail anything if the horse is forced to stand where his feet will be filthy. In this case the feet will become disordered and then the leg will get badly out of fix, and with bad feet and bad legs there is not much else of the horse fit for anything. Stable prisons generally are terribly severe on the feet and legs of horses, and unless these buildings can afford a dry room where a horse can walk around, lie down or roll over, they are not half so healthy or comfortable to the horses as the pastures, and should be avoided by all good hostlers in the country. While the ground is wet, as it always is in the Spring and Fall of the year, horses are liable to be afflicted with scratches and grease in the heel. To cure and prevent these disorders, the parts should be well washed with emollient soap, and afterward rubbed very dry with soft cloths; after which they may be touched with sweet oil or healing ointment, and the animal should be kept out of the wet as much as possible.—Ohio Farmer.

A Pennsylvania preacher returned thanks, lately, for the prosperous condition of the crops, but carefully put in "Excepting, O Lord, the corn, which is backward, and the oats, which are mighty thin in spots."

Real Estate Agent,

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements for capitalists and emigrants as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate, in the sociability of the people, in great fertility and durability of soil, no section can equal it.

A railroad will soon be built to Norfolk, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing, farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

A farm of 700 acres in Pasquotank County 10 miles from town, with fine two story dwelling, large barn, kitchen and other outhouses; as also, two other dwellings, barns and other houses at different points on the farm. This farm is all cleared but 150 acres, is free from swamps and other waste land, and is well adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, &c. The price is 14,000 in easy payments.

A farm of 500 acres in Pasquotank County, 6 miles from town, and one mile from the River, with good new dwelling built in modern style, barn, stables, four tenant houses scattered over the farm, fine water, &c. This farm is situated on the most public road in the County, has 300 acres cleared and balance in splendid pine, oak, cypress, maple, sweet gum, and other valuable timber. It is peculiarly adapted to raising cotton, $50 per acre, net, having been realized on a part of it this year in cotton. It also grows corn, wheat, oats, and other crops well. Price $12,000 in easy payments.

A valuable vacant lot in the town of E. City containing a half square, on the principal street in the town immediately opposite Court House square. Has an iron fence in front, fine shrubbery, and is near the large new Hotel justerected, Price $2,000 in easy payments.

Also two fine farms in Pasquotank county, 10 miles from E. City, within half mile of church, school house and post office. One tract contains about 400 acres, with fair buildings and mostly cleared, and the other contains 300 acres, with good two story dwelling, large barn, and other outhouses, both are offered at $20 per acre, one third cash, balance in one and two years.

Three farms—one of 100 acres, one of 80 acres and one of 190 acres, within two miles of town, mostly cleared land. Price $20 per acre for each tract—payments on easy terms. Also many other valuable farms and town lots too numerous to mention.

BANKRUPTCY.

THE FIFTY PER CENT. CLAUSE.

As there seems to be a misunderstanding in regard to the effect of the provision of the Bankrupt Act, commonly called the 50 per cent. clause, we publish the following extracts from the Act:

The second clause of the thirty-third section as amended by the Act of July 27, 1868, provides "that no discharge shall be granted to a debtor whose assets shall not be equal to fifty per centum of the claims proved against his estate upon which he shall be liable as the principal debtor, unless the assent in writing of a majority in number and value of his creditors to whom he shall have become liable as principal debtor, and who shall have proved their claims, filed in the case at or before the time of hearing of the application for discharge.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled—that the provisions of the second clause of the thirty-third section of said act as amendedby the first section of an act in amendment thereof, approved July 27th, 1868, shall not apply to those debts from which the bankrupt seeks a discharge which were contracted prior to January 1st, 1869.

The true meaning is not that a bankrupt must be able to pay fifty per cent of all his debts, before he can obtain a discharge, as many believe; but that his estate, in the hands of his assignee, at the time of the discharge, must be equal, to fifty per cent. of the amount of the debts.

1. That he owes as principal;
2. That have been proved against his estate in bankruptcy; and
3. That he has contracted since the 31st day of December, 1868.

Or, if a majority in number and value of those who have proved their debts, to whom the bankrupt is indebted as principal, on debts contracted subsequent to Dec., 31, 1868, consent in writing to the discharge—such bankrupt may be discharged forever from all his debts.

If a debtor, owing three thousand dollars as principal, twenty-five hundred of which indebtedness was contracted prior to January 1, 1869, and five hundred subsequent to that time, files his petition in bankruptcy, and all his creditors prove against him, and there are no assets in the hands of the assignee, the petitioner will be entitled to a discharge; but it will be a bar only to the debts contracted prior to January 1, 1869.—If no creditors prove, the discharge will be good against all debts, whether contracted before or after January 1, 1869.

The practical effect in bankruptcy-cases generally is, that creditors fail to prove their debts, finding it ordinarily unprofitable. They have had, in a large majority of instances, heretofore the trouble and expense of making proofs, without receiving any return. The 50 per cent. bugbear, therefore when viewed in the light of the law and common-sense, disappears.

EXEMPTIONS IN BANKRUPTCY.

The exemptions under the 14th section of the Bankrupt Act are as follows.

1. Household and Kitchen furniture to an amount not exceeding $500.00
2. Wearing apparel of Bankrupt and family.
3. Uniform, &c., if he has been a soldier in the United States Army.
4. Personal property of the value of $500.00 to be selected by the Bankrupt.
5. A Homestead and the dwelling and buildings used therewith, not exceeding in value the sum of $1000,.00; or in lieu thereof, any lot in any city, town or village not exceeding in value the sum of $1000.000.
6. The reversionary interest in the Homestead lands.

In laying off the Exemptions in some Districts, the Assignees are ordered to accept, and abide by, any assignment of a homestead which has been made by a Sheriff under the State laws; or which has been assigned upon the application of a debtor in accordance with the laws of North Carolina. Where no such assignment of homestead has been made, the assignee will proceed to set apart such homestead, and make the other exemptions according to the rules of the bankrupt Court.

The report of such exemptions when made by the assignee can be excepted to by the bankrupt or by any creditor, within twenty days after the allotment of such exempt property.

EFFECT OF THE DISCHARGE IN BANKRUPTCY UPON JUDGMENT.

It is the opinion of many of our best lawyers that the discharge in bankruptcy, discharges judgment debts existing against the bankrupt at the time of filing his petition, and that therefore the liens existing by virtue of such judgments upon homesteads are wiped out, and cannot afterwards be enforced. In fine, that the practical effect of the discharge, is to leave a man, whose homestead was encumbered by judgments, free from all his debts, of every nature, and the owner in fee simple of such homestead.

Again many lawyers, equally prominent in the profession, are of opinion that such will not be the effect of the discharge. That the homestead, will still be liable under the judgments and that when it determines under our State laws, the judgment creditor may enforce his lien and collect his debts.

To place this matter beyound doubt, the following rule has been adopted for the benefit of petitioners who are not willing to run any risk.

That the petitioning debtor may file his petition in the District Court, addressed to Hon. Geo. W. Brooks, asking that the judgment creditor, or creditors, show cause why the liens existing in pursuance of their judgments should not be adjusted by said court, and their present value ascertain and fixed, and the amount when so ascertained, to be made the true value of such lien or liens by the decree or judgment of said District Court, in bankruptcy.

The right to adjust such liens, is exercised in pursuance of Sec. 1. of the Bankrupt Act.

FILING PETITIONS AND SCHEDULES.

☞ Petitions and Schedules must be in duplicate Petitioner should sign each sheet, except oath to schedules. It is not necessary to file sheets of schedules that are not used. All papers in bankruptcy must be sworn to before a Register in Bankruptcy, U. S. Commissioner, or Clerk of the court.

The following deposit to secure costs is required at time of filing Petition. Register $50, Clerk $20, Messenger $5. Bankruptcy blanks can be had of M. B. Culpepper, Elizabeth City, prepared in sets for Two Dollars per set.

The original papers in all such cases should be sent to T. W. Costen, Register, Elizabeth City, N. C.
